

Reuters non-executive director Ed Kozel stands down from board

February 20, 2007

LONDON – Reuters (LSE: RTR; NASDAQ: RTRSY) announced today that Edward Kozel will not stand for re-election to the Reuters board at the annual general meeting on April 26th .

His decision to stand down comes after seven years as a non-executive director at the company. Latterly he served on the remuneration committee, where his place will be taken after the AGM by another current non-executive director, Sir Deryck Maughan.

Ed Kozel is chief executive of CRIGHT, a director of Yahoo!, Symbol Technology and Red Hat Inc and a former non-executive director of TIBCO Software and Narus Inc. Prior to that he worked for Cisco Systems in a number of roles, most recently as the Chief Technology Officer and Senior Vice President of Business Development.

Niall FitzGerald, Reuters chairman, said: "Ed Kozel has made an outstanding contribution over the last seven years to the life of Reuters and the Reuters board in particular. His long and distinguished experience in the world of technology has been enormously valuable to the company as was his work on the remuneration committee. We are sad to see him go, he will be missed."

End

Contact:

Steve Clarke,
Reuters Media Relations
Tel: +44 207 542 6865
Mobile: +44 7990 56 6865
Email: steve.clarke@reuters.com

About Reuters:

Reuters is the world's largest international news and financial information source, reaching over 1 billion people a day. Known for its speed, accuracy and independence, Reuters content powers newsrooms and financial markets around the world. Reuters distributes its text, data, pictures and video to professionals and direct to consumers via online and digital services. Founded in 1851, Reuters Group has 16,800 employees in 89 countries and had annual revenues of £2.4 billion/$4.4 billion in 2005. For more information and the latest news, visit www.reuters.com